

IN THE DISTRICT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES
FOR THE DISTRICT OF SOUTH CAROLINA
ANDERSON/GREENWOOD DIVISION

Danny Ray Gilliam,
Petitioner,
v.
Warden of Lee Correctional Institution,
Respondent.

Civil Action No.: 8:14-04127-RBH-JDA
REPORT AND RECOMMENDATION

Petitioner brought this action seeking relief pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 2254. [Doc. 1.]

On January 8, 2015, Respondent filed a motion for summary judgment. [Doc. 23.] On the same day, pursuant to Roseboro v. Garrison, 528 F.2d 309 (4th Cir. 1975), Petitioner was advised of the summary judgment/dismissal procedure and the possible consequences if he failed to respond adequately. [Doc. 25.] Despite this explanation, Petitioner did not respond to the motion.

As Petitioner is proceeding pro se, the Court filed a second Order on March 3, 2015, giving Petitioner through April 3, 2015, to file his response to the motion for summary judgment. [Doc. 29.] Petitioner was specifically advised that if he failed to respond, this action would be dismissed for failure to prosecute. [Id.] However, Petitioner has failed to respond to the motion.

Based on the foregoing, it appears Petitioner no longer wishes to pursue this action.

“The Federal Rules of Civil Procedure recognize that courts must have the authority to control litigation before them, and this authority includes the power to order dismissal of an action for failure to comply with court orders.” Ballard v. Carlson, 882 F.2d 93, 95 (4th Cir. 1989) (citing Fed. R. Civ. P. 41(b)). “Federal courts possess an inherent authority to dismiss cases with prejudice sua sponte.” Gantt v. Md. Div. of Corr., 894 F. Supp. 226, 229 (D. Md. 1995) (citing Link v. Wabash R. Co., 370 U.S. 626 (1962); White v. Raymark Indust., Inc., 783 F.2d 1175 (4th Cir. 1986); Zaczek v. Fauquier Cnty., Va., 764 F. Supp. 1071, 1074 (E.D. Va.1991)).

The Fourth Circuit, in Davis v. Williams, recognizing that dismissal with prejudice is a harsh sanction that should not be invoked lightly, set forth four factors for determining whether Rule 41(b) dismissal is appropriate:

- (1) the degree of personal responsibility on the part of the plaintiff;
- (2) the amount of prejudice to the defendant caused by the delay;
- (3) the presence or absence of a drawn out history of deliberately proceeding in a dilatory fashion; and
- (4) the effectiveness of sanctions less drastic than dismissal.

588 F.2d 69, 70 (4th Cir. 1978) (citing McCargo v. Hedrick, 545 F.2d 393, 396 (4th Cir. 1976)). Subsequently, however, the Fourth Circuit noted that “the four factors . . . are not a rigid four-pronged test,” and whether to dismiss depends on the particular circumstances of the case. Ballard, 882 F.2d at 95. For example, in Ballard, the court reasoned that “the Magistrate's explicit warning that a recommendation of dismissal would result from failure to obey his order is a critical fact that distinguishes this case from those cited by appellant.

. . . In view of the warning, the district court had little alternative to dismissal. Any other course would have placed the credibility of the court in doubt and invited abuse.” Id. at 95–96.

Because Petitioner is proceeding pro se, he is personally responsible for his failure to file a response. Petitioner has had almost three months to respond to the motion for summary judgment. Under the Roseboro Order, Petitioner's response was due by February 12, 2015, and despite being advised of the possible consequences if he failed to adequately respond, Petitioner elected not to respond. The Court filed a second Order, reminding Petitioner a response was due, giving him additional time—until April 3, 2015—to respond, and warning him the case would be dismissed pursuant to Rule 41(b) if he failed to file a response. However, Petitioner has failed to respond. Because Petitioner has already ignored Court Orders and deadlines, sanctions less drastic than dismissal would not be effective.*

Wherefore, based upon the foregoing, the Court recommends the case be DISMISSED pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 41(b).

IT IS SO RECOMMENDED.

*The Court notes that Petitioner filed a motion to stay in this case, requesting the Court to stay proceedings until the Court ruled on Petitioner's motion to amend. [Doc. 36.] However, on March 27, 2015, the Court denied Petitioner's motion to amend the Petition and denied Petitioner's motion to stay. [Doc. 37.] Ten days have passed since the Court ruled on Petitioner's motions, and Petitioner still has failed to respond to the motion for summary judgment. Given Petitioner's repeated failure to ignore Court Orders and deadlines even though the Court has warned Petitioner that his case would be dismissed, the undersigned has little alternative but to recommend dismissal. See Ballard, 882 F. 2d at 95–96.
